ST. ELIAS MARONITE CATHOLIC CHURCH

St. Elias Maronite Catholic Church is located in Birmingham, Alabama. It was founded in 1910 and was originally located at Sixth Avenue and 20th Street South. The church, in its current location at 836 8th Street South, was built in 1950. The first Divine Liturgy was celebrated at midnight on Christmas Eve of that year. In 1999, St. Elias began its Annual Lebanese Food and Cultural Festival.

The church belongs to the Maronite Rite, which evolved from the Antiochene Tradition of Catholicism. The patron saint of our church is St. Elias (or Elijah, the Old Testament prophet.)

The "MARONITE RITE" takes its name from the holy hermit call MARON, who lived in the 4th and 5th centuries near Antioch, in Northern Syria. He was a staunch defender of the Catholic faith. His disciples followed in his footsteps.

The Maronite Church became a formal entity with the institution of the Maronite Patriarchate of Antioch and the Whole East, in the 7th century. The first Patriarch was St. John Maron, chosen in 685 A.D. The residence of the Maronite Patriarch is now in Lebanon.

The Maronite Church professes the same faith and beliefs of the ONE, HOLY, CATHOLIC and APOSTOLIC CHURCH. It also administers the 7 Sacraments (Mysteries) instituted by Christ, and obeys all the rules and ordinances issued by our Holy Father the Pope, the successor of Saint Peter in the Vatican.
